This new track keeps the authenticity of the original arrangement which showcased some of the brightest and hottest young jazz and blues musicians around the New England area back in 1998.

This day in the Hebrew Calendar 6 Iyar 5785

Our remix adds some new elements and tempo changes to make this new track relevant and attract and delight the modern listeners of today May 4th 2025.

Hadassah Chavivah Zeltzer is a soul artist with a smooth, mellow, voice.

With the great musicianship of her band and the "Sped Up" tempo for this new remix, this version of the track is Hadassah Chavivah's favorite mix to date.

{This special Twentieth anniversary 2025 remix edition of our track can be streamed on our SoundCloud page

{Fun facts about how this new recording came to be}.

What makes this track so unique is that back in 1998 there were no digital recordings. Only Dat Files.

This new version of the song had to be converted from a multi-track studio file and converted to a more modern type of digital audio wave file so that the new engineer could implement the changes I wanted the new recording to have for this modern version of the song.

I had the original master (Dat) sitting in my closet for twenty years! To my good fortune, the original mixed tape files were preserved enough to convert them to a digital format.

The studio and our original engineer Bill Mason from Second Story Productions in Rosendale Ma. was thankfully still in operation after 20 years and they were able to help us convert the Dat files to a digital file.

I was then able to send the file to Nashville Tennessee to work with Doug Diamond to help me recreate the track for a more modern audience .

I was blessed to have Mark Shilansky a New England Conservatory musician and Berklee College of Music professor be my first producer on the original version of the song and the whole CD. He is the amazing "Piano Man" on the track as a well as my producer.

I was also fortunate to have Sandra Lynn Bedrosian Ms. Zeltzers's vocal coach assist t me with some vocal arrangements during the original recording session. Sandra is an amazing local talent in New England area.

We did all of the recordings in this vintage basement studio in Roslindale Ma.

All of the musicians where Marks friends from New York and Boston and his brother was even one of the artists in the band.

For the new remix, I contacted Doug Diamond of Diamondiscaudio.com in Nashville Tennessee. I had worked with Doug in the past to remix some of my music that I had written with other songwriters in the New England Area.

All of these songs can be found on Tzedeck.coms music division page for placement and other music opportunities.
